R. G. TWEED DIES ON THE WAY HOME

Body Was Sent on to Ingleside Arriving There Wednesday Morning

WAS IN FRANCE 18 MONTHS

After three weeks of waiting for some word from his son George, whom he supposed had with his company, landed in New York, about the first of July, A. Tweed of Ingleside was dealt a crushing blow when an official telegram came to him last Saturday saying that his son had died at sea July 10. Later information revealed the fact that the young man had the flu last September and since that time had gradually failed and was never able to regain his company. This fact, however, he carefully concealed from his relatives, and his letters contained no hint of his real condition although his comrades who have served homes report that he suffered a great deal and toward the last he was very home sick. When his company left for home he was unable to come but was later sent from base hospital No. 65, on board hospital ship U. S. S. Mallory. His death occurred at 3 o'clock p. m., a few hours after leaving harbor. The body was brought on to Hoboken, N. J., and a wire sent to relatives. As soon as possible the remains were sent on to his home at Ingleside, in company of a guard, and arrived there Wednesday morning.

Sergeant Robert George Tweed, youngest son of Alex and the late Ida M. Tweed, was born at East Fox Lake on September 25, 1887, and grew to manhood in that vicinity. He enlisted in the service of his country June 7, 1917. The following September he was called into training, and the first of January 1918 was sent abroad, as a member of Motor Transport Corps No. 309. His company was stationed at Bordeaux hauling supplies to the front. Although in the thick of the fray, he received no injuries as far as is known, and was constantly on duty until he became a victim of the flu.

A letter to his father from the captain of the medical corps said in part: "As Sergeant Tweed came under my care only a few hours before his death I did not know him personally, but every record shows him to have been a most excellent soldier, and man, and to have served his country faithfully at all times. At time of his death he was in hospital with medical men in attendance."

He was a member of Rising Sun lodge A. F. & A. M. of Grayslake, and also a member of the Modern Woodmen.

Besides his father, who is a veteran of the civil war, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Chas. Bazel of Ingleside, and Mrs. Fred Cribb of Antioch, also a brother, Lavi Tweed of Moneville, as well as many other relatives and friends.

Taking a Plebiscite

Plebiscite is a political term borrowed from the French, meaning a vote of all the electors in a country taken on some specific question. It is from the Latin plebs, meaning the common people, and is somewhat similar to the referendum. A notable example of the use of the plebiscite in French history was in 1852, when the memorable coup d'etat of 1851 was confirmed and the title of emperor was given to Napoleon III.

Division of Samoan Islands

By the agreement of December 2, 1899, among the United States, Great Britain and Germany, the Samoan Islands were divided between the United States and Germany. Great Britain retiring and accepting compensation for her retirement in the form of colonial concessions elsewhere in the world. This agreement ended a long series of outbreaks and disorder in the islands amounting to a state of civil war, due, it was charged at the time, to the intrigue and aggression of the Germans.

World's Largest Crater

Dr. B. P. Griggs, who has been exploring the volcano of Mt. Katmai, in Alaska, for the National Geographic society, announces that this is the greatest crater in the world, being no less than nine miles in circumference and 3,000 feet in depth.

Oil Or No More Oil For Our Village Streets

The first coat of oil is getting pretty well worn off our village streets and now everyone is asking "Are we to have more oil this summer?" This question isn't one to be easily answered. We are very close to having more oil and yet we may not get it. The situation all summed up amounts to this.

The Commercial association has almost money enough for another coat of oil, but not quite, they need a little outside help. Learning this several people who did not contribute to the first oiling have volunteered to help new and some who did help the first time are willing to do so again, and some have volunteered to donate work in spreading the oil, so the financial end of it doesn't seem to bother.

But, here is the stumbling block, there is nobody to go ahead. No one seems willing to devote the time necessary to the collecting and handling of the funds already in sight.

The merchants and business men of the village are all swamped with work of their own at this time of the year, but if some one who can spare the time would take up the matter and push it a little we would get another coat of oil.

May Drag River to Find Body of Suicide Victim

No trace has been found as yet, according to the authorities, of Peter Mumsen, the 69 year old farmer who disappeared from his home near Libertyville Monday evening after a son had informed him that he was to be tried for his sanity the following morning.

"I am at a loss to know what became of him," Sheriff Green said. "Mumsen threatened to commit suicide by drowning himself in the river. We searched up and down the river bank for the distance of a mile but were able to find no trace where he might have entered the water. We have instructed members of the family to notify us in case the man appears."

Relatives and friends apparently lean to the suicide theory for they are continuing the search for the body. The only condition of the river would prevent the body from being discovered until it rose to the surface. In the meantime the surrounding woods and open country is being searched.

Mumsen was milking a cow when a son informed him that he was to be tried for his sanity the following morning. Mumsen immediately stopped work and after kissing his wife goodbye and saying his intended to drown himself, disappeared.

Boy Choir to Sing at St. Ignatius Church

The Episcopal church throughout the world is famous for its well trained boy choirs and many of the world's famous singers have received their elementary training in a boy choir of that church. Special pains is always taken to secure a choir master of great ability and in many cases the choir master's salary comes close to that of the priest. Music is considered a valuable asset in the worship of Almighty God as set down by the churches ritual and it is therefore necessary that it be of the very best. All will agree that the boy's voice when properly trained cannot be excelled. Antioch is fortunate in having one of Chicago's best boy choirs sing for them next Sunday, namely, the choir of the "Church of the Atonement," Edgewater. The choir happens to be camping on the Episcopal property at Grace Lake and has offered its services. Cars will bring the boys to the eleven o'clock service at which they will sing.

Foolish Old Customs Survive

St. Olav's Grammar school, once worth $150, is now valued at $25,000, but the root is still a bunch of roses. The ancient city of Chichester must provide a string for the king's "cross bow," while the lord of Brynston, in Dorset, must provide a bay with a stringless bow and unfettered arrow, whenever the king makes war on Wales. The tenant at Bridley, Great Wood, near Grimshy, must pay the mayor of Grimshy a wild boar, or its equivalent in cash, yearly.—London Times.

Almost Forgotten

The bride and bridegroom were just about to say "I will," when the bride's mother dashed madly from the room, and returned, running up the aisle to the bride, and pushed the bride's bouquet into the bride's hands. In the excitement of the occasion the flowers had been forgotten.

As Usual

"Will you have another cup of coffee?" the landlady asked the boarder. He shook his head. "The split is willing, but the coffee is weak."

TWO HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Driver Fails To See Turn And
Plunges Straight Ahead
Into Ditch

UNCONSCIOUS FOR HOURS

Another serious accident occurred at McNeill's corners on the Fox Lake road early Wednesday morning when a Ford touring car crashed into a ditch and pinned two men underneath.

Alderman Kandl of the Fifteenth ward Chicago, and a friend by the name of Slatter, had driven from Chicago to Fox Lake for a short outing, reaching the lake late Tuesday evening, and stopped at Pete Johnson's hotel. As it was impossible to secure accommodations in that vicinity, they started out for Little Lake about 2:00 o'clock.

They were driving alone at a pretty good rate, and being unfamiliar with the roads, they failed to note that there was a turn in the road, and in place of turning the corner he drove straight ahead and crashed full force into the ditch. The car turned completely over pinning the two men beneath and rendering them unconscious.

About six o'clock Slatter came to himself to realize that something had happened, and although the bones in one leg were broken between the knee and the ankle in such a way that the bones protruded through the flesh, he crawled to the nearest house and called for aid.

Dr. Warriner was immediately called to attend Slatter and Kandl, who gave immediate assistance. Although his rescuers expected to find him dead, when the car was lifted it was discovered that his injuries consisted of only bumps, bruises and scratches, and that no bones were broken.

An ambulance was summoned from Waukegan and after Dr. Warriner had dressed the wounds, they were sent to Waukegan, but when they reached there Slatter, at his own request, was placed on board a train and sent to Chicago. The Ford was badly demolished.

The accident occurred at the same corner where Dr. Regan, a Waukegan dentist, met his death in an auto accident about two years ago.

Attention to Odd Fellows and Rebekahs

The Lake County Independent Order of Odd Fellows will meet at Antioch at the Woodmen hall on Saturday evening, July 26, and we earnestly desire to have every Odd Fellow and Rebekah present and bring their friends if they wish. We expect that Past Grand Master H. M. Blood of the Grand Lodge of Illinois and other able speakers will be present.

The committees in charge are arranging a musical program in connection with other features of the evening and will endeavor to make this the banner meeting of the association.

Plan Big Celebration For Returned Soldiers

Now that the time has come when every Antioch lad who entered the service of his country in the world's great conflict has arrived safely home, and the community has awakened to the realization of the fact that Providence has so willed it that not one gold star appears upon our service flag, it is thought to be a fitting time for Antioch and the surrounding community to hold a grand celebration.

This proposed celebration is to be in the nature of a welcome home to all of our boys and a celebration of their safe arrival. It is proposed to make the affair an all day event, in which the citizens of Antioch and the surrounding country may all join in one big celebration.

But in order to carry out so large a project it will be necessary to have the co-operation of everyone, and to secure this co-operation a meeting has been called for next Tuesday evening, July 29, for the purpose of formulating the plans.

Every business person and every resident of the community is asked to attend this meeting and participate in making arrangements. Don't forget the date, Tuesday evening, July 29.

Bitten By Dog Sues For $500.00 Damages

If a dog bites a man, is the owner of the animal liable for damages? It is more or less of a mooted point but is in a fair way to be settled for a test case has developed in Lake county with the filing in circuit court of a suit for $500 damages. The suit was filed by Albert Hoefft against Henry Voehling at Aras. Hoefft charges that Voehling maintained a vicious dog which was known to be dangerous, having bitten several people. He says the dog attacked him, biting him in the leg, lacerating that member very seriously.

He says that it was necessary for him to have the services of a physician and he lost much time in consequence of his illness. He says it cost him upwards of $250 to be cured. He thinks he is entitled to $250 more for the pain and anguish he suffered.

There are a number of vicious dogs about the county and those who have been bitten by them will watch the result of this test case with considerable interest.

Milk Producers Call Meeting

The milk producers of this vicinity will hold a meeting in the auditorium of the Antioch township high school building on Saturday evening, July 26 at seven thirty o'clock. This meeting is called for the purpose of selecting a banker and a representative to handle the funds of the local branch of the Milk Producers Co-operative Marketing Company. This meeting is being called by Frank Scott, President and H. S. Messing, Sec'y. All members are urged to be present.

Olson Camp Favors Raise

Deputy Jennie R. Chilstrom of Evanston was present at the meeting of Olson Camp No. 459 R. N. A., Tuesday evening and gave a very interesting talk, in which she set forth very plainly the need of the proposed raise in rates.

When the referendum vote was taken only two voted "yes," the remainder of those present voted "nay." Thus Olson Camp goes on record as heartily in favor of the raise and decidedly against its repeal. At the close of the meeting light refreshments were served.

Special Election Bonus Question up to Voters

At a special election to be held on Tuesday, September 2, the voters of Wisconsin will be asked to decide whether the state will raise $15,000,000 to pay a bonus to soldiers, sailors and nurses. This decision was reached by the Wisconsin legislature on Wednesday, ending a fight that has been waged all through the session. The senate stood for granting the bonus without a referendum, while the assembly and Governor Philipp demanded the question be settled by the voters of the state.

If approved by the people on September 2, Wisconsin soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses will receive $10 a month for the time spent in service, with a minimum of $50. The heirs of a deceased soldier will receive $10 a month, the sum to be computed with July 1, 1919, as the date of termination of service.

The bill as passed on Wednesday carries practically $15,000,000, of which one-third is to be raised by a surtax on incomes and two-thirds by a general property tax of not to exceed 3 mills on the dollar.

The Braganza Diamond

The Braganza diamond is a great mystery. Very few people have ever been allowed the privilege of looking at it, and of these few some are of the opinion it is not a diamond at all, but merely a wonderful specimen of white topaz. At any rate, it is generally conceded to be a diamond and is considered the jewel supreme of the crown jewels of the late reigning house of Portugal, the ancestral family of the duke of Braganza.

GREEN FANCY LIARS.

Synopsis.—Thomas K. Barnes, a wealthy young New Yorker, on a walking trip in New England near the Canadian border, is given a lift in an automobile by a mysterious and attractive girl named Green Fancy. At Hart's tavern Barnes finds a stranded troupe of "barn-storming" actors, of which Lyndon Rushcroft is the star and "Miss Thackeray" the leading lady. They are doing hotel work for their board. He learns Green Fancy is a house of mystery. That night two mounted men leave the tavern under odd circumstances. One is shot dead near by; the other is brought back dying. The sheriff detains Barnes. Green Fancy guests appear and say the mystery does not concern Green Fancy.

The two men looked at him, plainly perplexed.

"When was all this?" inquired De Soto.

"Early last evening. He picked up your latest guest at the corners, and she insisted in his driving me to the tavern before the storm broke. She must have been caught out in all that frightful—"

"What's this you are saying, Mr. Barnes?" cut in De Soto, frowning. "No guest arrived at Green Fancy last evening, nor was one expected."

Barnes stared. "Do you mean to say that she didn't get there, after all?"

"She? A woman, was it?" demanded O'Dowd. "Bedad, if she said she was coming to Green Fancy she was spooling you. Are you sure it was old Peter who gave you that jolly ride?"

"No, I am not sure," said Barnes. "She was afoot, having walked from the station below. I met her at the corners and she asked me if I knew how far it was to Green Fancy, or something like that. Said she was going there. Then along came the automobile, rattling down this very road—an ancient Panhard driven by an old codger. She seemed to think it was all right to hop in and trust herself to him, although she'd never seen him before."

"The antique Panhard fits in all right," said O'Dowd, "but I'm hanged if the woman fits at all. No such person arrived at Green Fancy last night."

"Did you get a square look at the driver's face?" demanded De Soto.

"It was almost too dark to see, but he was old, hunched-backed, and spoke with an accent."

"Then it couldn't have been Peter," said De Soto positively. "He's old, right enough, but he is as big as the side of a house, with a face like a full moon, and he is Yankee to his toes. By gad, Barnes, the plot thickens! A woman has been added to the mystery. Now, who the devil is she and what has become of her?"

CHAPTER VI.

Charity Begins Far From Home, and a Stroll in the Wildwood Follows.

Mr. Rushcroft was furious when he arose at eleven o'clock on the morning after the double murder, having slept like a top through all of the commotion. He boomed all over the place, vocal castigations falling right and left on the guilty and the innocent without distinction.

"I don't see how you managed to sleep through it," Barnes broke in. "You must have an unusually clear conscience, Mr. Rushcroft."

"I haven't any conscience at all, sir," roared the star. "I had an unusually full stomach, that's what was the matter with me. I take on now, sir, never to eat again as long as I live. A man who cannot govern his beastly appetite ought to defy it, if nothing else."

"I gather from that remark that you omitted breakfast this morning."

"Breakfast, sir? In God's name, I implore you not to refer to anything so disgusting as stewed prunes and bacon at a time like this. My mind is—"

"How about luncheon? Will you join me at twelve-thirty?"

"That's quite another matter," said Mr. Rushcroft, readily. "Luncheon is no esthetic tribute to the physical intelligence of man, if you know what I mean. I shall be delighted to join you."

"Twelve-thirty, did you say?"

"It would give me great pleasure if your daughter would also grace the feast. I think it is too bad that she has to go about in the gown she wears," Mr. Rushcroft said Barnes.

"She's much too splendid for that. I have a proposition I'd like to make to you later on. I cannot make it, however, without consulting Miss Thackeray's feelings."

"My dear fellow!" bellowed Rushcroft, seizing the other's hand. "One frequently reads in books about it, coming like this, at first sight, but, damn me, I never dreamed that it ever really happened. Count on me! She ought to leave the stage, the dear child. No more fitted to it than an Easter lily. Her place is in the home, the—"

"Good Lord, I am not thinking of—"

And Barnes, against, stopped before blurted out the words that leaped to his lips. "I mean to say this is a proposition that may also affect your excellent companions, Bacon and Dillingford, as well as yourself."

At twelve-thirty sharp Barnes came down from his room freshly shaved and brushed, to find not only Mr. Rushcroft and Miss Thackeray awaiting him in the office, but the Messrs. Dillingford and Bacon as well.

"I took the liberty, old fellow," said Rushcroft, addressing Barnes, "of asking my excellent co-workers to join us in our repast."

"Delighted to have you with us, gentlemen," said Barnes affably.

The sole topic of conversation for the first half hour was the mysterious slaying of their fellow lodgers. Mr. Rushcroft complained bitterly of the outrageous, high-handed action of the coroner and sheriff in imposing upon him and his company the same restrictions that had been applied to Barnes. They were not to leave the county until the authorities gave the word. One would have thought, to word. One would have thought, to word. One would have thought, to word.

Barnes had been immersed in his own thoughts for some time. A slight frown, as of reflection, darkened his eyes. Suddenly—perhaps impetuously—he interrupted Mr. Rushcroft's flow of eloquence.

"Have you any objection, Mr. Rushcroft, to a more or less personal question concerning your own private—or misfortunes?" he asked, leaning forward.

For a moment one could have heard a pin drop. Mr. Rushcroft evidently held his breath. There could be no mistake about that.

"It's rather delicate, but would you mind telling me just how much you were stuck up for by the—er—was it a writ of attachment?"

"It was," said the star. "A writ of inquisition, you might as well substitute. The act of a polluted, impetuous, parsimonious—what shall I say? Well, I will be as simple as possible—hotel keeper. Ninety-seven dollars and forty cents. For that pitiful amount he subjected me to—"

"Well, that isn't so bad," said Barnes, vastly relieved. He was covertly watching Miss Thackeray's half-averted face as he ventured upon the proposition he had decided to put before them. "I am prepared and willing to advance this amount, Mr. Rushcroft, and to take your personal note as security."

Rushcroft leaned back in his chair and stuck his thumbs in the armpoles of his vest. He displayed no undue emotion. Instead he affected profound calculations. His daughter shot a swift, searching look at the would-be Samaritan. There was a heightened color in her cheeks.

"Moreover, I shall be happy to increase the amount of the loan sufficiently to cover your return on once to New York, if you so desire—"

Barnes smiled as he added the last two words.

"Extremely kind of you, my dear Barnes," said the actor, running his fingers through his hair. "Your faith in me is most gratifying. I—I really don't know what to say to you, sir."

"May I inquire just how you expect to profit by this transaction, Mr. Barnes?" Miss Thackeray asked steadily.

He started, catching her meaning. "My dear Miss Thackeray," he exclaimed, "this transaction is solely between your father and me. I shall have no other claim to press."

"I wish I could believe that," she said.

"You may believe it," he assured her.

"It isn't the usual course," she said quietly, and her face brightened. "You are not like most men, Mr. Barnes."

"My dear child," said Rushcroft, "you must leave this matter to your friend and me. I fancy I know an honest man when I see him. My dear fellow, fortune is but temporarily frowning upon me. In a few weeks I shall be on my feet again, zipping along on the crest of the wave. I dare say I can return the money to you in a month or six weeks. If—"

"Oh, father!" cried Miss Thackeray. "We'll make it six months, and I'll pay any rate of interest you desire. Six per cent, eight per cent, ten per—"

"Six per cent, sir, and we will make it a year from date."

"Agreed. Get up and dance for us, Dilly! We shall be in New York to-morrow!"

"You forget the dictatorial sheriff, Mr. Rushcroft," said Barnes.

"The violet!" barked Mr. Rushcroft. It was arranged that Dillingford and Bacon were to go to Hornville in a hired motor that afternoon, secure the judgment, pay the costs, and attend to the removal of the personal belongings of the stranded quartette from the hotel to Hart's Tavern. The younger actors stoutly refused to accept Barnes' offer to pay their board while at the Tavern. That they declared, would be charity, and they preferred his friendship and his respect to anything of that sort. Miss Thackeray, however, was to be immediately relieved of her position as chambermaid. She was to become a paying guest.

Rushcroft took the whole affair with the most noteworthy complacency. He seemed to regard it as his due, or more properly speaking as if he were doing Barnes a great favor in allowing him to lend money to a person of his importance.

"A thought has just come to me, my dear fellow," he remarked as they arose from table. "With the proper kind of backing I could put over one of the most stupendous things the theater has known in fifty years. I don't mind saying to you—although it's rather sub rosa—that I have written a play—a four-act drama that will rack the biggest house on Broadway to the roof for as many months as we'd care to stay. Perhaps you will allow me to talk it over with you a little later on. You will be interested, I'm sure."

I don't mind saying to you—although it's rather sub rosa—that I have written a play—a four-act drama that will rack the biggest house on Broadway to the roof for as many months as we'd care to stay. Perhaps you will allow me to talk it over with you a little later on. You will be interested, I'm sure."

He seemed to regard it as his due, or more properly speaking as if he were doing Barnes a great favor in allowing him to lend money to a person of his importance.

"I thought has just come to me, my dear fellow," he remarked as they arose from table. "With the proper kind of backing I could put over one of the most stupendous things the theater has known in fifty years. "Well, I'm tremendously relieved," said Barnes slowly.

"And so am I," said O'Dowd with conviction. "I have seen the heroine of our busted romance. She's a good-looking girl. I'm not surprised that she kept her veil down. If you were to leave it to me, though, I'd say that it's a sin to carry discretion so far as all that. You see what I mean, don't you?" His rich laugh came over the wire.

"Perfectly. Thank you for letting me know. My mind is at rest. Good-by." As he hung up the receiver he said to himself, "You are a most affable, convincing chap, Mr. O'Dowd, but I don't believe a word you say. That woman is no lady's maid, and you've known all the time that she was there."

At four o'clock he set out alone for a tramp up the mountain road in which the two men had been shot down. His mind was quite clear. Roon and Paul were not ordinary robbers. They were, no doubt, honest men. He would have said that they were thieves bent on burglarizing Green Fancy were it not for the disclosures of Miss Thackeray and the very convincing proof that they were not shot by the same man.

It was not beyond reason—indeed, it was quite probable—that they were trying to cross the border; in that event their real operations would be confined to the Canadian side of the line. He could not free himself of the suspicion that Green Fancy possessed the key to the situation. Roon and his companion could not have had the slightest interest in his movements up to the instant he encountered the young woman at the crossroads. His busy brain suddenly suffered the shock of a distinct conclusion. Was she a fellow conspirator? Was she the laid plan to rifle the place?

Could it be possible that she was the confederate of these painstaking agents who lurked with sinister patience outside the very gates of the place called Green Fancy?

His ramble carried him far beyond the spot where Roon's body was found and where young Conley had come upon the tethered horses. His eager, curious gaze swept the forest to the left of the road in search of Green Fancy. Overcome by a rash, daring impulse, he climbed over the stake and rider fence and sauntered among the big trees which so far had obscured the house from view. The trees grew very thickly on the slope, and they were unusually large. He progressed deeper into the wood. At the end of what must have been a mile he halted. There was no sign of habitation, no indication that man had ever penetrated so far into the forest. As he was on the point of retracing his steps toward the road his gaze fell upon a huge moss-covered rock less than a hundred yards away. He stared, and gradually it began to take on angles and planes and recesses of the most astounding symmetry. Under his widening gaze it was transformed into a substantial object of cubes and gables—and yes, windows.

He was looking upon the strange home of the even stranger Mr. Curtis—Green Fancy.

Now he understood why it was called Green Fancy. Its surroundings were no greener than itself; it seemed to melt into the foliage, to become a part of the natural landscape. OLD NAMES RETURN TO FAVOR HAD ONE BOLSHIEV TRAIT

Nomenclature in England Shows Effect of War's End on Minds of Parents.

Parents are giving their "Peace Year" babies much prettier names than those who were born during the war period.

Investigation of the registers at Somerset house shows some of the most popular names for boys and girls now are Ronald, Edward, George, Gordon, Jean, Kathleen, Irene, Marguerite.

Lillian is another popular name for girls today, and among Welsh people "Megan" is a great favorite.

Names of flowers and loyalty are not now, and politics and industry are not without their influence upon the register books. Oddly enough the early Victorian names are cropping up again—Susanah and Letitia are occurring much more frequently than they have for many years, but except in remote rural districts Biblical names have not held sway for some decades.—London Chronicle.

"Why do you waste your days and nights on these pictures?" asked the wife of a struggling painter. "You don't get enough for them to pay for the paint you use."

"I know, my dear," he answered. "But think of it. I am not painting for the pictures and sold them for trifles, and now they are the masterpieces of this world and sell for a million dollars. I am not painting for us. I am painting for our descendants."

AN ORDINANCE PROVIDING FOR THE RE-BUILDING AND REPAIR OF WATER TOWER AND TANK, THE SINKING AND CONSTRUCTION OF A WELL, THE PURCHASE AND INSTALLATION OF A PUMP, THE BORROWING AND APPROPRIATION OF MONIES FOR SUCH PURPOSE, THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS TO PROVIDE FUNDS FOR THE SAME, THE LEVY AND COLLECTION OF AN ANNUAL TAX TO PAY BONDS AND INTEREST AND THE SUBMISSION TO A SPECIAL ELECTION OF SUCH BORROWING OF MONIES AND ISSUANCE OF BONDS.

WHEREAS the Village water tower supporting the water tank, located on lot 12, Simons Addition to the Village of Antioch is in a condition that is greatly dangerous to the safety of persons and property in the immediate vicinity thereof, and unless rebuilt and repaired may fall and greatly damage property in the immediate vicinity and also deprive the Village of its water supply.

AND WHEREAS, also, the well now located on said premises has become insufficient in water supply for the needs of the Village of Antioch.

AND WHEREAS, it is necessary to rebuild and repair such water tower and water tank and to construct and sink a well and provide suitable pump.

NOW THEREFORE, be it ordained by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Antioch, County of Lake and State of Illinois.

Section 1. That portion of the upper part of the water tower of the Village water system which has become out of repair and in dangerous condition, being about 15 feet of the upper part thereof, shall be removed and rebuilt in a substantial and workmanlike manner so as to furnish a good and sufficient base for the support of the water tank now located on said tower at the same height thereof, as the same is now located and said tower shall be reconstructed and said tank reconstructed in a substantial and workmanlike manner, so that said water tank may rest upon a substantial and firm foundation. The necessary water connections shall be replaced and restored. All such work, labor and material shall be performed and furnished all in accordance with the plans and specifications for the same on file in the office of the Village Clerk.

Section 2. A well 10 inches in internal diameter shall be constructed, drilled and sunk on lot 12, Simons Addition to the Village of Antioch to a sufficient depth to furnish necessary and adequate water supply for all the needs of the Village of Antioch and the inhabitants thereof. In such well there shall be installed and placed water pipe of 10 inches internal diameter. A suitable pump shall be purchased and installed, connected with such well with all necessary appurtenances and such pump shall be connected with the power plant on said lot, and all of the work, labor and material performed and furnished shall be in accordance with the plans and specifications for the same now on file in the office of the Village Clerk.

Section 3. There is hereby appropriated from the funds and monies of said Village not otherwise appropriated and from the sale of bonds for this purpose the sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5000.00) to be used for the purpose of re-building, repairing and constructing said water tower and tank, the construction drilling and sinking of well, the purchase and installation of pump, all as hereinbefore set forth.

Section 4. That for the purpose of providing funds for the purchase, building, construction, installation and repair of said water tower, tank, well and pump, subject to the approval and authorization of a majority of all the votes cast at a special election to be held for that purpose, pursuant to law there shall be borrowed on the credit of said Village the sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5000.00) and to evidence such loan subject to authorization by such election as aforesaid, there is hereby ordered, issued the negotiable interest bearing bonds of said Village to said amount, said bonds shall be Twenty five in number, each of the denomination of Two Hundred Dollars, which said bonds shall bear date the first day of October 1919, shall be numbered from One to Twenty-five both inclusive. Said bonds shall become due and payable in the order of their numbers as follows: Two Hundred Dollars ($200) April 1, 1920, Four Hundred Dollars ($400) April 1, 1921, Four Hundred Dollars ($400) April 1, 1922, Eight Hundred Dollars ($800) April 1, 1923, Eight Hundred Dollars ($800) April 1, 1924, Eight Hundred Dollars ($800) April 1, 1925, Eight Hundred Dollars ($800) April 1, 1926, Eight Hundred Dollars ($800) April 1, 1927. Said bonds shall bear interest from and after their date until paid at the rate of 5% per annum, payable on the first day of April of each year until fully paid, which interest payments to the date of the maturity of the respective principal amounts shall be evidenced by interest coupons attached to the respective bonds and both principal and interest shall be payable in lawful money of the United States of America, at the Bank of Antioch, Antioch, Illinois. Each of said bonds and interest coupons shall be signed by the President of the Village and Attested by the Clerk of the Village and the corporate seal of said Village shall be impressed upon each of said principal bonds but not upon interest coupons and such officers are hereby authorized and directed to so execute said bonds and coupons for and in behalf of said Village, said bonds shall be sold by the President and Board of Trustees of said Village as soon after their issue as conveniently can be done and the proceeds derived therefrom shall be placed in the Village Treasury in the special fund to be used solely for the purpose for which said bonds are being issued.

Section 5. All moneys in the water fund from time to time not otherwise appropriated or needed shall be applied in payment of and reduction of the principal and interest of this bond issue to be applied on such bonds and interest in the order of maturities thereof.

Section 6. That for the purpose of providing moneys and funds required to pay the interest on said bonds promptly when and as the same falls due and also to pay and discharge the principal of said bonds at their maturities, there is hereby levied on all taxable property of said Village, in addition to all other taxes, the following direct annual tax, to wit:

For the year 1919 a tax sufficient to produce the net sum of $325.

For the year 1920 a tax sufficient to produce the net sum of $650.

For the year 1921 a tax sufficient to produce the net sum of $1000.

For the year 1922 a tax sufficient to produce the net sum of $1000.

For the year 1923 a tax sufficient to produce the net sum of $1000.

For the year 1924 a tax sufficient to produce the net sum of $920.

For the year 1925 a tax sufficient to produce the net sum of $880.

For the year 1926 a tax sufficient to produce the net sum of $310.

The Village Clerk is hereby directed to file a certified copy of this ordinance with the County Clerk of this County who shall in each of said years ascertain the rate percentage required to produce the net aggregate tax hereinabove levied for the respective years and extend the same for collection upon the tax roll, in connection with tax levied for such respective year by said Village for general village purposes, and in addition to such tax so levied and collected for general village purposes, and in each of said years said annual tax shall be collected at the same time and in the same manner as the tax levied by said Village for general purposes for such years are collected and when collected shall be used solely for the purpose of payment of interest and principal of said bonds hereby authorized so long as any of said bonds remain outstanding and unpaid.

Section 7. That a special election be and the same is hereby called to be held on Tuesday the 19th day of August A. D. 1919, for the purpose of submitting to the voters of this village, the borrowing of money as is herein provided for in the amount of Five Thousand Dollars and the issue of bonds evidencing such loan to provide money and funds for the purposes hereinbefore set forth. Said election shall be held in the village hall in the council chamber thereof. Notice of such election stating the purposes thereof shall be made and given as is provided by law. William Dupre, Wm. H. Osmond and L. B. Gries shall be the judges at such election, Joseph C. James, Nason Sibley and H. J. Vos shall be the Clerks at such election. The poles shall be open from 8 o'clock in the forenoon until 7 o'clock in the afternoon of said day and the election shall be conducted and returns to be canvassed, as is provided by law.

Section 8. All ordinances or parts of ordinances heretofore passed in conflict with the provisions of this ordinance shall be and the same are hereby repealed.

Section 9. This ordinance shall be subject to authorization by the voters of the village, shall be published according to law and after its passage, approval, publication and authorization at the election herein specified shall be in full force and effect.

BIG SHOW COMING

Hiram Goes to Purchase the Necessary "Props."

He and Lemuel Shemmer Exchange Reminiscences Concerning Past Performances in Which They Had More or Less Interest.

"Top o' the morning, Lemuel!" This from Hiram Jessup, of Jessup's Out. "Same tew yew, Hiram," returned Lemuel Shemmer, owner and clerk of the one general merchandise store of the town.

"Say, Lem," says Hiram, "besides gettin' a few things here in thuh store, I druv over tew tell yuh I've rented out the op'ry house for two nights the month after next week. Me and Obeldiah Higgins hez been n-sweepin' thuh hay out uv it an' brushin' thuh cobwebs off'n thuh cheers. Thuh planner had a nest uv eggs in it right alongside a Utter uv klittens. Kln yew bent that? That reminds me; got any good white paint? I want tew paint the perakl-neum boxes in the op'ry house."

"Sorry, Hiram, but I ain't got a smuck o' paint in thuh hull place. Cyrus Punkweed used thuh last on his henhouse. I kln give yuh a bushel uv good strong lime that oughter do, it being quicker tew dry than paint."

"All right, Lem. I'll give yew tew tickets for thuh show fer it. It's Uncle Tom's Cabin they're gonna play."

"Yew won't give me no seats if they're where they wuz when them pictures about 'He Loved Her All Night' wuz put on thuh sheet, thet dramun' sandlepne made such an all-fired racket it druv me high plumb crazy!"

"Thet wuz tew bad, Lem. Yew kln hev thuh best seats in thuh house this time. I want some good strong rope, too, Lem. These Uncle Toms are goin' tow give me two dollars extry of I cut a hole in thuh roof tew let Little Eva through when she goes tew Heaven on."

"Yess, I'm dern sorry, Hy. I ain't got any rope, fer Pike Logan took thuh last 10 feet. Howsomever, here's 50 feet uv good barbed wire that oughter do. Just tell Little Eva tew hang on between thuh points."

"Fine, Lem. Say, them Uncle Toms want me tew feed them six bloodhounds they got fer two dollars a day. What shall I feed 'em?"

"Yew take a fool's advice, Hiram Jessup, an' don't feed no animals! When thet circus cum tew town 10 years ago, I got thuh contract tew feed thuh elephant, an' that bloomin' bawg uv an elephant et me outer house, home an' stable. I ain't been able tew recover myroot thuh loss yit!"

"Guess I'll let them bloodhounds starve, then, Lem. Thanks. I'll send thuh tickets around. Hope we hev a full house."

"So do I, Hy. S'long."—Detroit Free Press.

End of Penance in Ecuador.

Penance has been abolished in Ecuador through a legislative decree, which also ends imprisonment for debt, according to information recently received from Consul General Frederic W. Goding of Guayaquil. Prior to this decree a peon was compelled by law to remain on an estate as long as he was indebted to the owner, who arranged that the peon was always owing more than he could pay, a condition that was practical slavery. The decree also forgave all debts owed by peons, thereby making their emancipation complete.

The members of this class may now work for whom they please, come and go at will, and enjoy equal rights with other citizens of this republic.

Gaelic Fumes Annoy London. Residents of London have been complaining recently of the foul gases emanating from the poor quality of gasoline which motorists are compelled to use. It is said that the fumes aggravate lung troubles.

"One effect of the carbon monoxide in petrol fumes is to destroy the function of the red blood corpuscles," said a medical professor. "We would be better without the fumes, and the sooner we get good petrol the better it will be for our health. I do not think there is any real danger to health. The fumes are rapidly diluted with immense quantities of air. Before they could get from a vehicle in the road to the pavement they would be harmless."

There is an old saying to the effect that troubles never come singly and such has proved to be case of Julius Spitzbart. A short time ago his barn filled with new hay caught fire and was completely destroyed. In trying to save his stock Mr. Spitzbart was so badly burned that he was taken to the hospital where he is still being treated. Then added to that, a few days ago a switch engine came along and set fire to a hay stack in the field and burned up all that was left of his 1919 hay crop.

Good Rules for Life's Conduct.

Those that are perfect men do not easily give credit to everything one tells them; for they know that human frailty is prone to evil, and very subject to fall towards. It is great wisdom not to be rash in the proceedings, not to stand stiffly in their own councils, as also not to believe everything which thou hearest, nor presently to relate again to others what thou hast heard or dost believe.

Instructing Grandpa.

"I was talking to my little granddaughter over the telephone the other day," said an old man recently to a few of his friends at a hotel, "and when I ended I said, 'Here, Dorothy, is a kiss for you.' She replied, 'Oh, pshaw, grandpa! Don't you know that a kiss over the telephone is like a straw hat?' I said, 'Why, no, sweet-heart, how's that?' 'It's not felt,' grandpa," she said, "Blighly (London)."

The Biggest Mummy.

The largest mummy in the world is that of an infant, the Beresovka mammoth, in the Petrograd museum. The species has been extinct for thousands of years, and the Beresovka mammoth—which was found embedded in the frozen earth near the Beresovka river, in northeast Siberia—probably lived fifty thousand years ago.

Figures of Speech.

An old lady, after returning from a visit to "the zoo" announced that she "always did enjoy a visit to the Theological Gardens." A servant girl, describing her master's illness, explained that the "doctors held a consolation" and found that it was something "eternal," and a lady recently remarked that when she was in Italy she "saw many people in the garbages of monks with tonsils on the heads."

Exercised Discretion.

Richard, on his first visit to the country, climbed the fence into the field where a Jersey cow was grazing. The cow, being somewhat of a pet, greeted him with a loud and joyous moo, whereupon Richard bent a hasty and disorderly retreat. "No, I wasn't elastically afraid," he explained; "but when she kept saying, 'Move, move!' I thought I'd better keep a-movin'!"

Described in Detail.

I think my most embarrassing moment was when I was thirteen years old. My father telephoned that he had left a package for me at the hardware store two blocks away and that I should call for it; that he had described me to the manager and that I would have no trouble getting it.

I went to the store and a little old man came and looked at me over his glasses and said decidedly: "Well, you're the one for that package, all right, all right."

He was so decided that I became curious and asked: "How did you know me so well?"

He said: "Well, little lady, your dad left this package and he says, 'She's a homely little kid with a snub nose,' so I knew you right off."

Every one in the store laughed but me.—Exchange.

Lax in Milk Inspection.

The United States department of agriculture has just recently completed an investigation of the milk supplies of the cities and towns of the United States. Of all of these only 265 report regular dairy and milk inspection. Inspection is generally least developed in cities of less than 100,000, and in cities of between 5,000 and 25,000 less than one-seventh report any dairy inspection, and in some of these the system is only partly developed.

The dairy division of the department has valuable information on the most effective systems of milk control for cities of all sizes. This information, and where necessary the personal assistance of federal experts, are available to boards of health and civic organizations for the solution of their local milk problems.

Lime Shows to Be Beneficial.

In France the government once classified soldiers according to their birthplace. It was found that those reared in regions where the soil was rich in lime were nearly an inch and a half taller than those from regions where the soils were poor in lime, and were also stronger and healthier.

Powerful "Fourth Estate."

The "fourth estate" is the newspaper press. It is so designated humorously as a distinct power in the state. Formerly the phrase designated the persons constituting the lowest and unrepresented classes of society, as distinguished from the commons.

Another Editor in Bad.

According to the Wjellin Eagle, an editor in a near-by town has moved his press over against the door and is laying his meals sent in at the window since he let this get by in a society item: "Mrs. Curt's popularity is evidenced by her many friends to this vicinity."—Kansas City Star.

One-Sided Humor.

After the company had gone, Mrs. Mason said to her husband, "What on earth did you mean, John, by telling the Flemings that my humor was positive, but not negative?" "I meant," said Mr. Mason discreetly moving toward the door, "that you could make a joke, but couldn't take one!"

BIG U. S. FLEET OFF TO PACIFIC

Dreadnaughts, Cruisers and Destroyers Leave Virginia Harbor for West Coast.

WILL GO THROUGH CANAL

War Vessels to Visit San Diego, San Pedro, San Francisco and Hawaii and Then Reassemble in Puget Sound.

Fortress Monroe, Va., July 19.—When the new Pacific fleet started out of Newport News at 8:30 a. m. a new epoch opened in American history. Few amid the bustle of departure, the hurried good-bys, the waving of handkerchiefs, may have realized that another leaf in the nation's development was unfolding.

From the time that America was born, a fleet has been in the Atlantic to protect her from danger in the east. Now she will have one equally strong, 60-50 between the two, to protect her from storm clouds whiffed eastward.

Just 70 years ago the hazy fortifiers, lured by the yellow metal which makes and breaks nations, crossed the continent and California was added to the republic. Now through the isthmus of Panama, the new fleet, more battleships than our nation dreamed of owning only a few years ago, is going to string a floating rampart of steel to protect the Pacific.

A flock of torpedo-boat destroyers, birdlike in comparison with the ponderous dreadnaughts, were the first to get under way. At almost the same time the dreadnaught New Mexico, with the fleet commander's flag flying from one of its spider masts, started into sluggish motion.

Other dreadnaughts, predreadnaughts and cruisers fell in behind the big oil burners, carrying Admiral Rodman and his staff in addition to their regular ship complement of 915.

Though the fleet will eventually number 175 ships, not all are on the cruise. Of its seven dreadnaughts, the first under American colors to reach the Pacific, the Tennessee, is being overhauled. Several other fine dreadnaughts, cruisers, destroyers, submarines and miscellaneous tenders, which will eventually be part of the fleet, also will join later.

Colon on the Atlantic side of the Panama canal will be reached July 25. Balboa on the Pacific side will be left behind, and the fleet will start northward July 30. No stops to edify the Central American republics or Mexico are scheduled, nor will there be any maneuvering, saving coal and breaking in the comparatively new crews.

San Diego is to be reached August 9, Secretary of the Navy Daniels taken aboard and anchor weighed the following day.

From August 11 to 18 the fleet will be in San Pedro harbor, off Los Angeles. The ships will be open for inspection by the public there and while it lies off San Francisco from August 20 to 24. After that it will be divided, the portion carrying Secretary Daniels going to the Hawaiian Islands, lying in Honolulu harbor from August 31 to September 6 and off Hilo September 7 to 9.

The entire fleet will reassemble in Puget sound, September 17, the official visitors will leave, and it will get down to business. Nobody aboard sees any immediate fighting in sight, but it is ready.

One purpose of the stupendous cruise is to show the utility of the canal, our nation's engineering monument. Another is to prove the adequacy of our western shipyards for maintaining and supplying a fleet of such size, an object lesson for certain of our congressmen.

COL. S. T. ANSELL TO RESIGN

Offers Resignation Following His Denunciations of Court-Martial System of U. S. Army.

Washington, July 21.—Lieut. Col. Samuel T. Ansell of the judge advocate general's office, and who was a storm center by reason of his recent denunciations of the court-martial system of the United States army, tendered his resignation from the service.

VIOLENT RIOTS IN ENGLAND

Disturbances Reported From Various Towns—Town Hall at Luton Is Burned.

London, July 21.—Peace riots are reported from various English towns. At Luton, Bedfordshire, the town hall was burned by rioters. One hundred persons were injured in peace riots at Melbourne.

Stock Yards Men End Strike. Chicago, July 22.—At a mass meeting held on the prairie it was decided the 10,000 striking stock yards workers would return to their jobs. They went out Friday, charging too many policemen were stationed about the yards.

Ranyham Abandons Flight. St. John's, N. F., July 22.—Capt. Frederick Ranyham, the British aviator whose Martinsyde biplane was wrecked twice in trying to start a transatlantic flight, has received orders to abandon further attempts.

SIX MOBS FORM IN WASHINGTON

Capital Police Force and Provost Guard Unable to Protect Negroes.

FORMER SOLDIERS IN CROWD

Six Bands Operate in Widely Separated Sections of the City and Make at Least Seven Attacks on Blacks.

Washington, July 22.—Despite the entire police force of the capital, together with the assistance of a provost guard, there were seven mob attacks on negroes here as a result of attacks on white women by negroes within the past two weeks.

Huge crowds of men were out searching for negroes, and a number of the latter have been taken to hospitals because of injuries they have suffered at the hands of the infuriated citizens.

On Pennsylvania avenue, the main thoroughfare of the capital, a crowd of men and boys, with a liberal sprinkling of discharged soldiers and sailors among them, quickly gathered.

Their mobilization was apparently the continuation of a massed attack on the negro quarter in the southwest section of the city.

It is estimated that more than 2,000 men made up the largest party, and there were smaller bands in other parts of the town. The sight of a negro was the signal for an attack.

"Get him!" was the cry raised and the fugitive "gotten."

The ambulance of the Emergency hospital would soon clang its way up the avenue to take the victim for treatment and the mob would start off on its search for fresh suspects.

The police and soldiers were evidently powerless in the face of at least six bands operating in widely scattered sections of the city.

FOCH TO VISIT THE U. S.

American Legion to Extend Invitation to the Marshal to Come in November.

New York, July 22.—Marshal Foch, commander in chief of the allied armies, is to be invited by the American Legion to visit America this fall and to attend the next meeting of the legion in November.

The invitation, long urged by the American veterans who fought under the allied generalissimo, is now crystallizing and will be dispatched by cable in a few days over the names of American soldiers now prominent in the great war veterans' association.

CHINESE TO FIGHT RUSSIANS

Expedition for Defense of Northwestern Frontiers to Be Made Against General Semenov's Forces.

Peking, July 22.—An expedition for the defense of the northwestern frontiers against General Semenov's alleged aggression there is perhaps China's most modern military effort. Five thousand troops drawn from contingents trained by the Japanese for the national defense army are being dispatched toward Urga. For the first time in Chinese history automobiles in large numbers are being employed for the transportation of troops. It is expected that airplanes also will be utilized.

EX-CZAR'S BODY IS BURNED

Empress Was Shot Several Times—Proof of Their Deaths Found at Moscow.

Berlin, July 19.—Proof positive of the death of the Russian czar and his wife is to be contained in a secret official report in the archives at Moscow. The ex-empress, was shot several times. After the first shot she said: "Miracles still happen. I am alive yet." At the next shot she dropped, mortally wounded. The czar was shot seven times. His body was taken to the Kremlin in a wooden box and there burned in a stove.

SHOOT TO KILL ON RHINE

French and Belgian Guards Shoot Five Men Caught Smuggling Across River.

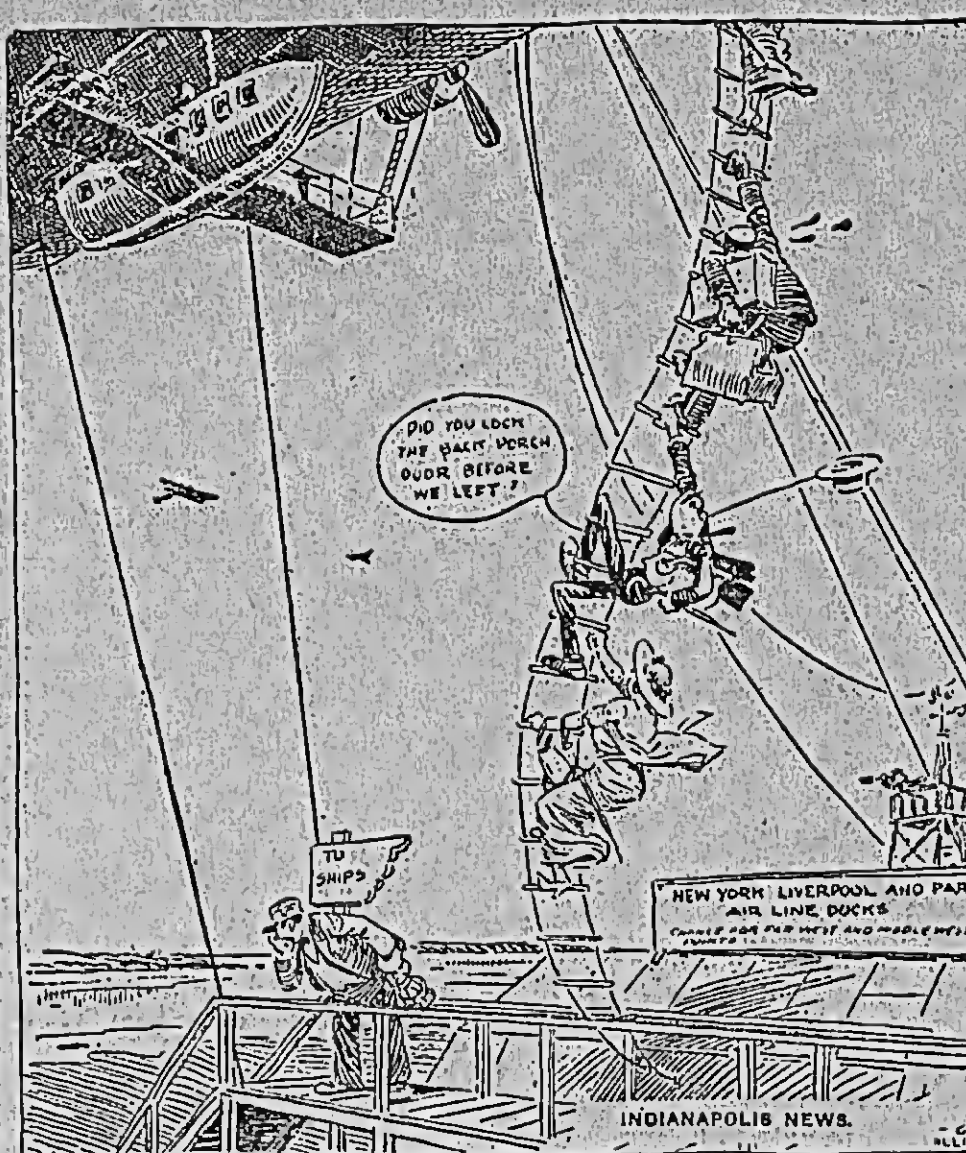

Lindwigham, July 22.—French and Belgian guards on the Rhine received orders to shoot to kill every person acting suspiciously approaching the left bank of the river. In the region of Dusseldorf alone, five persons caught smuggling things across the Rhine have been shot.

ROW OVER SHANTUNG FORMER EMPEROR ILL

SENATE ADOPTS BORAH RESOLUTION WITHOUT RECORD VOTE.

Senator Colt, Republican, of Rhode Island, indorses the Covenant of Nations.

Washington, July 18.—The Borah resolution calling upon the president to furnish the senate with a copy of a written protest against the Shantung settlement which Secretary Lansing, General Bliss and Henry White, as three of the American peace commissioners, were said to have signed, was adopted by the senate without a record vote or any discussion.

The League of Nations is inseparable from the peace treaty, "because the treaty cannot be enforced except through the league," which is "absolutely necessary to secure the present and maintain the future peace of the world," declared Senator Colt, Republican of Rhode Island, in an address in the senate.

Washington, July 21.—President Wilson still is insisting that the peace treaty and League of Nations covenant be ratified without reservations. Senator Capper (Rep.), Kansas, said after a conference with the president at the White House.

Senator Capper said the president took the position that adoption of reservations by the senate was certain to be misinterpreted abroad and would set a precedent which might be followed by other nations.

Bela Kun Gives Spreader of False Rumor Sentence in the Penitentiary.

Budapest, July 22.—Bela Kun's prosecution of rumor-mongering is stern and relentless. A leading lawyer entered a barber shop the other day and said:

"The French have entered Budapest; the bolsheviks have been overthrown."

He has been sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary; ten years at hard labor for ten words.

GREATLY DEPRESSED; PASSES MUCH TIME IN PRAYER.

Dutch Government to Deliver Ex-Ruler to the Allies at The Hague.

Paris, July 19.—The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung of Berlin, the mouthpiece of the government under the imperial regime, declares it has information that Holland will consent to the extradition of former Emperor William, according to a Berlin dispatch to Paris newspapers.

The formal handing over of the former emperor to the allies, it adds, will take place at the Hague.

Berlin, July 19.—The Pna-German Deutsche Zeitung, which stands close to former royal circles, takes a serious view of the illness of former Emperor William, calling it "deep melancholy."

It said that the one-time monarch is so depressed that his physician and family view his condition as critical. Count Hohenzoellern is said rarely to leave his apartment and seldom sees his closest friends.

The paper states that he spends many hours in prayer and that, when he does talk, he wants to converse on religious subjects.

The former emperor is said to show a "high degree of nervousness."

The condition of the former emperor is such, according to the newspaper, that she may have to return to Germany for treatment of her old heart trouble.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE TO SPREAD

Thousands of Marine Workers Thrown Out of Employment—Few Owners Yield to Men's Demands.

New York, July 21.—The strike of seamen, firemen and others, which has resulted in holding several hundred ships at their piers here and caused steamship and railroad terminals to become piled high with freight, entered its second week. Thousands of marine workers have been thrown out of employment and unless a quick settlement is brought about still other trades connected with shipping will be affected. A few private owners are reported to have yielded to the strikers' demands, but their submission is considered almost immaterial in view of the fact that at this port about 400 vessels remain idle and at other ports the number of ships tied up is estimated at more than 100.

Refuse to Put Fate Up to League of Nations, Says Bonar Law.

London, July 18.—The British government does not regard the action of the United States senate with respect to Ireland, or the acts in the same connection of other persons or bodies representing the American people, as in violation of article 10 of the League of Nations covenant, said Andrew Bonar Law, the government leader, in the house of commons.

The government, Mr. Bonar Law added, would not put the question of the future government of Ireland on the program for consideration at the next meeting of the council of the League of Nations.

BLIMP EXPLODES; 11 PERSONS DIE

Airship in Flames Crashes Through Roof of Chicago Bank.

CLERKS TRAPPED AND BURNED

Thousands See Big Gas Dirigible Burst and Crew Leap in Parachutes—Gas Tank Explodes in the Bank.

Chicago, July 23.—Eleven were killed and twenty-five injured when a gigantic dirigible on its test flight caught fire and fell 500 feet, crashing through the glass roof of the Illinois Trust and Savings bank, Jackson boulevard and La Salle street, shortly before five o'clock in the afternoon.

Most of the dead were employees of the bank, trapped and burned to death in a withering rain of fire caused by the explosion of the balloon's gasoline tanks as they hit the floor of the bank rotunda, where over 200 bookkeepers and clerks, nearly all girls, were working.

The Dead.

Marle Florence, Illinois Trust and Savings bank employee.

Irene Miles, stenographer, Illinois Trust and Savings bank.

Evelyn Meyers, stenographer Illinois Trust and Savings bank.

Edward Munzer, correspondence clerk at bank.

Carl Otto, telegrapher for the bank.

Joseph Scanlan, bank messenger.

Henry "Back" Wenner, Warren, O., mechanic; occupant of dirigible.

Unidentified woman, burned beyond recognition.

Unidentified woman, so badly burned identification almost impossible.

The blimp, owned by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company of Akron, O., had been flying about the city for several hours when the accident occurred. Thousands witnessed the catastrophe.

When approximately 500 feet above the bank a spurt of flame was seen to shoot from the center of the gas bag near the center of the airframe. The crowds gathered on the streets to watch the flight saw the great machine buckle and quiver as it started on its fatal plunge.

Four of its five occupants jumped, and two landed safely in the streets as the blimp, a veritable ball of flame, struck the roof of the bank with a crash audible throughout the loop district.

There was nothing to warn the hundreds of employees of the institution of the coming tragedy. A shadow passed over the marble rotunda, where 150 were busy, and a terrifying crash followed. The bank's closing hour for patrons had passed, but the clerks were still at work in various departments.

It seemed, according to the survivors, that the entire bank was on fire. Breaching through the iron supports holding the glass overhead, the fuselage of the blimp, with two heavy rotary engines and several gasoline tanks, smashed to the floor.

Instantly the tanks exploded, scattering a wave of flaming gasoline over the workers for a radius of 50 feet. A panic ensued. There were only two exits through which they could leave the wire cage which surrounded the rotunda.

Men and girls with clothing flaming fought their way through the exits. Girls on the second floor ran screaming to the window and several jumped to the street.

In an instant the marble rotunda was cleared except for the dead, whose bodies were burned under the flaming mass, licked to a white heat by the gasoline blaze, and the dying, who crawled feebly away from the scorching fire, their clothes burning off.

The intense heat made rescue work impossible until after the fire department arrived on a four-eleven alarm call. It was 30 minutes before the bodies under the raft's fuselage could be dragged out. They were burned beyond recognition.

Meanwhile ambulances from every hospital and undertaking establishment near the center of the city came and the police threw a cordon about the place. Dozens were found to have been more or less seriously cut by the shower of glass which preceded the explosion.

The cause of the fire which brought the flaming gas bag plunging down is not known. None of the crew could describe a definite reason for the accident.

Nerves All Unstrung?

Nervousness often comes from weak kidneys. Many a person who worries over trifles and is troubled with nervousness, rheumatic pains and backache, would find relief through a good kidney remedy. If you have nervous attacks with headaches, backaches, dizzy spells and shaky, shooting pains, or if you are annoyed by bladder troubles, try Doan's Kidney Pills. They have brought quick benefit in thousands of such cases.

An Illinois Case

Mrs. Gust Mehl, 732 Marion St., Waukegan, Ill., says: "I suffered with a severe attack of kidney trouble. I was laid up for a month at a time, unfit for work. Every move I made sent a sharp pain across my back. My head ached and the top of my head felt as if it were on fire. I was dizzy at times and my body bloated. Finally I used two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they gave me relief."

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

"Fire Don'ts" for Vacation Campers in Forests

WASHINGTON—Now is the time to stop forest fires by not having any, says a warning from the American Forestry association. The Minnesota fire last year is still fresh in the public mind and when it is estimated the fire loss in 1918 was $28,500,000 and that 8,400,000 acres were burned, every precaution should be taken by summer campers. Here are some "don'ts" to be posted on every tent door flap:

Don't throw your match away until you are sure it is out.
Don't drop cigarette or cigar butts until the glow is extinguished.
Don't knock out your pipe ashes while hot or where they will fall into dry leaves or other inflammable material.

Don't build a camp fire any larger than is absolutely necessary.
Don't leave a fire until you are sure it is out; if necessary smother it with earth or water.

Don't burn brush or refuse in or near the woods if there is any chance the fire may spread beyond your control, or that the wind may carry sparks where they would start a new fire.

Don't be any more careless with fire in the woods than you are in your own home.

Don't be idle when you discover a fire in the woods; if you cannot put it out yourself, get help. Where a forest guard, ranger or state fire warden can be reached, call him on the nearest telephone you can find.

Divorce on the Increase in the United States

OUT of every ten marriages in the United States one ends in divorce. These figures from the United States census bureau are startling or not, as one may view them. The ratio is increasing rapidly. In 1890 6 per cent of all marriages ended in the divorce courts. In 1900 the ratio was 8 per cent. Now it is 10. It is noted that in the District of Columbia there were only 18 divorces for every 100,000 of population, but in Nevada there were 607 for the same unit of population. Outsiders raised Nevada's showing.

The wife applies for the divorce in two-thirds of the cases, but here again statistics mislead. When a pair agree to separate it is customary for man to permit his wife to bring the suit to end a condition of which they are equally tired. Moreover, the wife has more legal grounds for divorce than the husband. A husband can be divorced for cruelty, for instance, and the statistics show that she advances this cause four times as often as the husband. Then she can divorce her husband if he fails to provide for her, but a husband can only in rare instances bring such a charge against his wife. Of the 108,702 divorces granted in 1916, only 12,480 were based on unfaithfulness.

Those who believe that the increase of divorce is due to a growing desire for freedom on the part of women, and to their new economic independence, will be shocked to learn that more and more of the women demand and get alimony, indicating that freedom is not the only thing they want. In the 20-year period preceding 1900 alimony was sought in only 13.2 per cent of the cases, and granted in only 0.2 per cent. But in 1916 alimony was sought in 20.2 per cent of all cases and was granted in 15.2 per cent.

Aliens Going Home With Good American Dollars

ALIENS to the number of 1,300,000 in the United States are planning to desert this country for their homeland and they will take with them approximately 4,000,000,000 American dollars. These facts are disclosed in a report by Ethelbert Stewart of Chicago, director of the investigation and inspection service of the department of labor, after an investigation of prospective emigration from America.

The estimate, Mr. Stewart says, is conservative. That the aliens will take $400,000,000 is figured on the basis of the average amount each alien will take, $300.

Official statement from the department of labor says that up to June 1, 1918, 1,300,000 aliens covered Chicago, the industrial mill district (South Chicago, East Chicago, Indiana Harbor, South Bend, etc.), Detroit, Pittsburgh and surrounding steel districts, Johnstown, Youngstown, O., and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and surrounding coal mining.

3,408 Poles covered by the investigation, 24,050, or 15.01 per cent, will go to Poland; Austro-Hungarians, 28,02 per cent; Russians, 35.70 per cent (Russians, 21.75 per cent; Lithuanians, 0.72 per cent; Romanians, 0.42 per cent; and Greeks, 11 per cent; Serbs, 30.90 per cent; Slovaks, 34.50 per cent).

Stelner of the intelligence bureau of the war trade board puts the money taken out at $1,500,000. He says the abolishment of several thousand savings stations, unscrupulous "private bankers" steamrolling agents up foreign language newspapers that grab at advertising, urging the foreigners here to send their money back to Europe and an alluring picture of a life in Europe is about to experience a great wave of emigration. These are some of the causes of the failure of this government to handle the raw immigrant.

Unclean to Campaign for a Healthier Nation

IN TIME of meeting the physical deficiencies revealed by the draft examining the United States public health service, under Surgeon General Hupine, has prepared for congressional consideration a far-reaching health program designed to raise the standard of physical fitness throughout the country by correcting the conditions responsible for the poor showing made in 1917.

"For that it was a poor showing, nobody can deny," Doctor Blue says. "Think of it! Out of over 3,000,000 men examined—men whose age should have constituted them the very flower of this country's manhood—only 70 per cent were found to be fit for full military service!"

Among objections for military service, 13.7 were due to afflictions of the heart and blood vessels; 12.35, bones and joints; 8.05 to eye troubles; 8.7, tuberculosis; 7.7, development defects (height, weight, chest measurement, etc.); 6.04, skin; 5.24 to mental deficiency, and 5.07 to nervous and mental disorder.

"Many of conditions discovered," according to Doctor Blue, "could have been prevented or corrected, especially if there had been proper health supervision in life." Doctor Blue's program includes:

- The adoption of measures for the adequate care and instruction of expectant mothers.
- Safeguarding health of expectant mothers engaged in industry.
- Accurate regulation of all births.
- Adequate early babies in homes, welfare stations and day nurseries.
- Instruction of mothers in baby hygiene.
- Supervision of milk supplies and establishment of pasteurization plants.
- Health supervision of children of preschool age.
- Supervision of the and school environment of school children, including sanitation of school grounds and school buildings.
- Medical inspection of school children, including provision for the correction and treatment of physical defects.
- Mental examination of school children and to determine and prescribe the treatment in training for children who fall in class work.

SWISS ARE TIRED OF EXILED KINGS

Poor in Funds and Spirit and Moodyly Waiting for Something to Turn Up.

'TINO' SPECIALLY OBNOXIOUS

Kaiser's Brother-in-Law Accepts Invitations to Banquets and Then "Cuts" His Hosts—Old Ludwig Saddest of All.

Chlanso, Indo-Swiss Frontier.—Switzerland is getting tired of exiled kings. They seemingly cause a rise in food prices, already toned up to breaking point, and give a good deal of trouble in international relations owing to their craze for political intrigue. Their faithful friends plot to get them restored to their former thrones. Switzerland is now the favorite resort of dethroned and crownless monarchs. Many of them, unhappy for Swiss hotelkeepers, are fortunate as well.

Ex-King Constantine of Greece, known to his foes as "Tino," has not been paying his bills with regularity of late. Since Kaiser Wilhelm, his brother-in-law, hastened into Holland, hard from Germany, fails to come, so hard up is "Tino" and his family, who live at the Hotel National, Lucerne, that he has had to borrow from former subjects, notably a courtier named Streif and the once fire-eating Theodor.

The weekly bill is 2,400 francs ($480), a modest sum for even an ex-sovereign, with a following of 90 people, all told. But even this bill (the entire family and entourage are on regular board rates) is paid with great difficulty.

Had to Cut Him Out. Then, "Tino" is no longer the little god of all those war profiteers who still flock to Switzerland from the ex-continental empires. They are tired of him. His way of accepting sumptuous banquets and then cutting his hosts and hostesses of yesterday when another dinner-giver has arrived, has finally bored them and invitations are few and far between.

No longer do his German, Austrian and Greek admirers give balls for him, where lights were turned out at two in the morning, though the party did not break up till several hours later. The orgies of "red balls" and "pink balls" and even "black balls" (so-called just because the lights went out before the party broke up, and everybody wore black when the lights were on, and all the decorations were black) began to shock the decent health or pleasure-seekers at Saint Moritz, Lugano and other resorts, so that the Swiss police had to intervene, and "Tino" was cut off from these lurid joys for the sake of public decency.

To crown all, the exchange is so bad for his dearest friends that they no longer have the money to spend on his amusement. And so he has to walk up and down the shores at Lucerne on foot, for he has not even a motor nowadays.

Kaiser's Sister Sees No One.

The rest of the family pass their time as best they can. His granddaughters and nieces, for the lack of a carriage or a car, go about on bicycles. People turn round to look at them, not because they are exiled princesses, but because they happen to be very pretty into the bargain, with fair hair and dazzling complexion; and beauty is not among the list of Swiss women's good qualities.

"Tino's" wife, Sophia, Kaiser Wilhelm's sister, goes nowhere and sees nobody. She is clothed in melancholy silence and takes her place at the head of the family table in the public dining room of the hotel with an expression of settled melancholy. They simply can't afford to dine in their rooms, because it would cost at least 20 per cent more, and goodness only knows how long they will be able to pay the weekly bill as it now stands. "Tino's" one extravagance nowadays consists of very strong cocktails. He quite recently asked Germany for a loan of 8,000,000 marks, but was curiously refused.

Prince Nik and His Monocle.

His brother, Prince Nicholas, walks a good deal on the lake side, with a huge monocle in his right eye—his one extravagance. The crown prince's cousin, known as the duke of Sparta, shares these melancholy walks. Prince Paul, his younger brother, kills time with a pretty little girl from Vienna; but as his whole income is $200 a month he cannot paint Lucerne red, and is content to listen to the public band, or to take coffee in a public garden where popular prices prevail. None of the family is popular in the little city, however. The Swiss say they are rough and disagreeable. They certainly all look bored to death.

Old King Ludwig.

The ex-king of Bavaria has taken a home in Switzerland, too—an old feudal manor, half convent, half fortress—at Zizers. In the canton of Grisons, not far from Chur.

Ludwig III, now seventy-four years old, looks the saddest and most depressed of all the dethroned royalties now on Swiss soil. Karl, ex-emperor of Austria-Hungary is almost tubercularly gay in comparison with him, and even the "Tino" family look cheerful by his side.

The old king is all alone. His son, Ruprecht, who till lately intrigued for the Polish throne, is supposed to be somewhere in Germany. He spends most of his time studying botany in the garden of his somber home, with an old Bavarian general, the one and only person of his suite who reads books about hunting to him when he is tired of the garden. The prince of Lippe, who lives not far off, leads much the same kind of life.

New Arrivals Daily.

Every day new refugees of distinction arrive in Switzerland. Tirpitz is at Lausanne, to the disgust of the citizens, who declare they will turn him out. Hindenburg is expected at Locarno, where there is a beautiful lake and almost an Italian climate. At Chiavari, amid mountains, lives the exiled Prince Windischgrätz, who, gossip says, has a secret mission—that is, to prevent the union of Austria with Germany.

MRS. MORTON F. PLANT

Berchtold and Andrássy are in Zurich. But the list of exiled monarchs, ministers, field marshals and nobilities of yesterday now eating pension food in hotels of various grades and killing time as best they may on incomes which the average New York business man would pity is too long to go over in full. They all have the same characteristics. They are poor, shabby, look bored to death, older than their years, grouchy and dyspeptic. And they all keep as far away from one another as they can.

Some Swiss recently remarked that it would be enough punishment for Kaiser Wilhelm to bring him to Switzerland and make him live in close touch with these fallen idols and heroes. They would give him such a bad time of it, blaming him for their fallen state, that he would clamor to be tried for his sins by the enemies within a week of his arrival among "friends and colleagues."

and honored on both sides of the water. The family of each dead hero will receive letters regularly from one small protégé, who during its whole lifetime will hold the name of their boy in reverence.

The Clarinda citizens have paid $30.50—10 cents a day—for each child's support for a year, through the Fatherless Children of France, an American organization with headquarters at 410 South Michigan avenue, Chicago, co-operating with a similar one in France, of which Marshal Joffre is the head. The organization will see that the adoption of each child is made in the name of and as a memorial to a dead soldier of Clarinda. The town plans to repeat this sum annually for each child until it is capable of caring for itself.

It has been demonstrated that 10 cents a day, to supplement the pension of the same amount which the French government, straining its resources, granted its war orphans at the time of the early disasters, will suffice to keep soul and body together in a little victim of the war and enable it to remain with its mother or other living relative instead of being placed in an institution. From the prayers of such a child the name of the brave American soldier who died for France and the world will never be absent.

RICH, BUT DOESN'T KNOW IT

Salter's Farm in Texas Turns Into Oil Lake While He's Gone.

Eastland, Tex.—Somewhere on the Seven Seas Eli Perkins is by all odds the richest man in the United States naval service. Knowledge of his big fortune has not yet come to him. His father has been trying to locate him, but what warship he is on has not been learned.

When Perkins enlisted in the navy more than two years ago, he owned a farm of 80 acres north of here. The soil is poor and has an intrinsic agricultural value of perhaps $400. When Perkins entered the navy he left the farm in charge of his father, with full power to net in all matters connected with it. With the first indications of an oil boom the elder Perkins leased the 80 acres for 25 cents an acre, retaining for his son the usual one-eighth royalty of any oil that might be produced.

When the field began to develop one-half of the one-eighth royalty was sold for $40,000 cash, which sum was deposited in a local bank to the credit of young Perkins. Now the big thing has happened. The Sinclair Gulf Oil company, which has a lease on the 80 acres, has brought in the largest well upon the tract that there is to be found in any of the central west Texas fields. It is producing crude petroleum at the rate of 10,000 barrels a day, each barrel valued at $2.25. The present income of the young man is about $1,500 a day, and with the bringing in of other wells upon the farm it may be increased several times this sum. He could easily dispose of his royalty rights for $3,000,000.

Whiskers Explained.

The early Jews were literally long on whiskers and made good use of them. The Jew's beard was a sort of standing notice to the world concerning his state of mind. If everything was propitious—wife and children well and business good—his beard was combed out and perhaps oiled. But if death had entered his family, his beard was a mere tangled mass of hair. The condition of the whiskers also indicated the existence of other emotions.

Utilization of Waste.

A distinguished chemist once observed that "My lady writes tender sentiments to her lord with ink made from an old copper coffee pot on paper made from old collars." The utilization of waste products, which adds enormously to the wealth of the world, furnishes many such fantastic adaptations.

An error was made in the report of the sale of the James farm; it is not sold, but is for sale. 160 acre farm—50 acres timber, 60 acres plow land, balance meadow and pasture, good 9-room house, good cellar and cistern, deep well, barn and other buildings, the price $75,000 per acre ought to sell it quick. Go and look at it, it will stand your inspection J. C. James, Antioch, Ill.

Uncle Eben.

"Some men does lufe to give anybody credit for anything," said Uncle Eben. "Dey can't throw a bouquet without tearin' off de roses an' handin' 'em out mostly stickers."

ROMANTIC MONTJOIE

Bridge Over River in Montjole.

WHATEVER material advantages may accrue by and-by to Belgium from the restitution of her old possessions in all these border regions of the former duchies of Limburg, Julliers, and Berg has passed at once into her hands in the ancient and little-known, because secluded, human habitation on the Roer which bears the picturesque name of Montjole, writes Demetrius C. Boulger in the London Graphic.

In the days of the Franks, before milestones came into vogue, it was the practice to mark the stages along the main routes by erecting a pile of stones, and sometimes it happened that the spot selected was on a field of battle. These heaps or piles were termed "Montjole" from the Latin words Mons Jovis, and when the name Montjole was incorporated in the battle-cry of France it signified no more than Forward St. Denis. The Burgundian battle-cry, "Montjole St. Andre," of the same period, was only Forward St. Andrew. Baudelaire's plausible suggestion that the Romans built a fortress here and gave it a high-sounding name may be relegated to the order of fairy tales.

Montjole then was nothing more than a stage or resting point on the high road of the Franks across Austrasia to the Rhine. Situated in a gorge of the upper Roer, it gave the earliest access from the south to the centers of Frank, not Teuton, culture in the Aix, Julliers and Stolberg regions.

In Picturesque Setting. Unlike Malmsey, Montjole aspires to no political role. It rests its claims to fame in the picturesqueness of its situation, and the charm of its medieval buildings bordering its narrow streets. The Roer, here only a shallow stream for three parts of the year, rippling over a stony bottom, flows through the town, and in some places even under the houses. It is swollen in the early spring by the melting snows of the Elbe, but it has scooped out for itself so deep a channel that floods are rare, and it sweeps along with increased volume past Duren and Julliers to join the Meuse in Holland.

Surrounded by the most beautiful forests of the Hertenwald or Holte Venn, which completely screen the little town from view, the valley is so narrow that a cricket ball might be thrown from the height on which the ruins of the old castle to the opposite cliff on which is the Halter or watch tower. This was placed where it is because it allowed of a better view up and down the valley in the days when the robber counts of Reichenstein levied toll on travelers even if they did not completely plunder them. The scenery is finest in the direction of Kallertberg, where the Perlenbach may be traced like a silver thread as it flows through the wood to join the Roer. This stream is called the Pearl brook because the dukes of Julliers used to derive from it the pearls for which their treasury was famous. It is true that muskels are still found, but no one has claimed for many a long day to have discovered a pearl.

Quaint Buildings, Narrow Streets. The little town is worthy of its setting. Against the rocky and precipitous sides of the mountains, through which the river has cut a way, aided, perhaps, by volcanic action, the inhabitants have run up lofty and many-storied buildings, which seem to aspire to reach the summits that confine them in so small and cramped a space. Houses of five and six stories are quite common, and even taller ones may be found. The consequence is that the main street, which at some places is not broad enough to allow of two carts passing each other, is at all times of the day in the shade, and that early in the evening it is buried in gloom. This is the more noticeable because up to a short time before the war only oil lamps were used in the public ways. Locomotion after dark was attended with no small inconvenience, and even peril, for a false turn down one of the numerous passages under the houses might easily lead to a ducking in the river.

The houses, mostly in the rococo style, are chiefly noticeable for the brass and ironwork of their external decorations, in railings, door knockers, linterns, and heraldic insignia. Shields, men in armor, gonfolons, and weapons figure in brass or copper to distinguish and to give a name to separate mansions. It is said that the impetus given to metal work was due to French Protestant immigrants, who fled to Montjole. At any rate, there is something quite French in the atmosphere of the place, and there will be no sharp wrench in the people casting aside the German dress they were compelled to wear against their will for a century.

ABOUT HUSBANDS AND WIVES

One Who Should Know Has a Few Words to Say on Interesting Subject.

In a series of stories written by Jean Pierre Perard, designated the most married man in the world, because he has 23 times led blushing brides to the altar, are many things illuminating to men and women. Two of his stories discuss men and women who make the best husbands and wives. In his own words:

Consideration for his wife's feelings is the good husband's middle name. He doesn't bowl her out in public. In fact he doesn't bowl her out at all, but if something goes wrong or he thinks he isn't getting a square deal somewhere, he has it out with her and gets it off his chest. He doesn't go about with a frown bottled up.

He doesn't keep a strangle hold on the purse strings or dote out the shillings as if he were sitting in a continuous game of penny ante, but neither does he throw the clutch and hit on all twelve cylinders.

When you come to face the facts in the case of a husband, the "good" husband is the one who heeds the advice of the Good Book and doesn't let his right hand know what the other does—or words to that effect.

The women who make the best wives are the ones who see to a man's comfort without making any fuss about it. They're the ones who take an interest in their husband's coming and going without keeping tabs on him till he feels as if home were a jail and she's the keeper.

They are strong-minded enough to keep husband in the straight and narrow path, but they refrain from pushing him too far or too fast. To sum it up, the women who make the best wives are the ones who regard marriage as an occupation or a profession.—New York Mail.

Economy About Hens.

A child of nine in Standard III of a Sheffield school wrote the following essay on "Hens," says the London Telegraph: "Hens are terrible (terrible) things in a garden. They do not chew their food; they swallow it whole. Hens eat bits of fat and then the egg shells are made from these. They lay a lot of eggs if you are lucky. Some people put pot eggs in the hens nest to try (like) them to lay. When hens start eating the eggs, the people put mustard in an egg shell. Hens have cloven feet and scarily (scarily) legs. One kind of hens are called cockerills."

Practice for Yellow Hammer.

Few birds have so many scandals connected with their names as the yellow hammer has in England, where the old wives used to tell that the scratches and hieroglyphics on its eggs were the handwriting of old Nick himself. They do say, too, that this bird "drinks a drop of the devil's blood every Monday morning," certainly a bad way to begin the week. So far as I can learn the yellow hammer is really a harmless chap. I've always loved the name given by the Italians to the young of this species which is "rigolotto," the name of the court fool in a well-known opera.—Exchange.

Boarding House Romance.

"Our landlady seems to have no soul for romance." "Oh?" "Displays no interest in these two young people who are in love." "Well, it's this way. It's a romance to us, but to her it simply means the loss of two boarders."—Louisville Courier-Journal.
